

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW MEXICO

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

Plaintiff,

vs.

Cr. No. 17-2381 JCH

EDGAR GOMEZ-GUZMAN,

Defendant.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

THIS MATTER comes before the Court on Defendant's Ex Parte Motion for Rule 17(c) Subpoena ("Motion"), filed September 1, 2017. (Doc. 15.) On September 14, 2017, the Court entered an ex parte order granting the motion. (Doc. 22). However, it has come to the Court's attention that its September 14 order granted a subpoena for a class of records neither discussed nor requested in the underlying motion: a list of Greyhound employees and their contact information. The Court will not grant a subpoena for documents not requested in the underlying motion. Thus, the Court will vacate its September 14 order, which is superseded by this Memorandum Opinion and Order.

The Court, having considered the Motion and the relevant law, and being otherwise fully informed, finds that the Motion is well-taken in part and will be GRANTED in part as described herein.

BACKGROUND

Defendant Gomez-Guzman is charged with Possession of more than 500 grams of a mixture or substance containing a detectable amount of methamphetamine with intent to distribute, contrary to 21 U.S.C. § 841(a)(1) and (b)(1)(A). (Doc. 15 at 2.) Mr. Gomez-Guzman seeks the issuance of a subpoena duces tecum pursuant to Rule 17(c) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure for two specific categories of documents.¹ Mr. Gomez-Guzman argues that the requested documents are necessary, relevant, admissible, and may reveal important information and witnesses.

DISCUSSION

I. Legal Standard

A. Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 17

Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure (“Rule”) 17 governs the issuance of subpoenas in criminal proceedings. Rule 17(a) describes the process for obtaining subpoenas returnable at trial by those who are able to pay for them. Specifically, under Rule 17(a), any party who is able to pay the fees and mileage of a subpoenaed witness may cause a blank subpoena to be issued by the clerk of the court as a matter of course, and without judicial intervention, and may then fill in the time and place at which the witness must attend and testify. Fed. R. Crim. P. 17(a).

Rule 17(b) describes the procedure for defendants who are unable to pay the required fees: “[u]pon a defendant’s ex parte application, the court must order that a subpoena be issued for a named witness if the defendant shows an inability to pay the witness’s fees and the necessity of the witness’s presence for an adequate defense.”). Fed. R. Crim. P. 17(b). “The Government is not notified of the proceeding and therefore defendant is not forced to disclose potential defense witnesses or their expected testimony.” United States v. Florack, 838 F. Supp. 77, 78 (W.D.N.Y. 1993). “Although prior judicial authorization is required, the ex parte nature of the Rule 17(b) application [thus] serves to put a defendant on equal footing with the

¹ Mr. Gomez-Guzman submitted a proposed ex-parte order with his ex-parte motion listing a third category of material not specifically sought in his motion. Specifically, this material was listed as category “(1)” in Mr. Gomez-Guzman’s proposed Ex Parte Order. This item was not sought in the motion, and the Court does not authorize its inclusion in the Rule 17(c) subpoena duces tecum it authorizes in this Memorandum Opinion and Order.

Government because the Government is not required to give a defendant notice as to those witnesses that it intends to subpoena to testify at trial.” United States v. Reyes, 162 F.R.D. 468, 469 (S.D.N.Y. 1995).

Rule 17(c) in turn governs the issuance of subpoenas duces tecum, and enables either party to obtain documents or other physical evidence. Specifically, Rule 17(c)(1) provides:

[a] subpoena may order the witness to produce any books, papers, documents, data, or other objects the subpoena designates. The court may direct the witness to produce the designated items in court before trial or before they are to be offered in evidence. When the items arrive, the court may permit the parties and their attorneys to inspect all or part of them.

Fed. R. Crim. P. 17(c)(1). Thus, unlike a trial subpoena issued under Rule 17(a) or 17(b), Rule 17(c) provides that a subpoena duces tecum may be made returnable before trial. Id.; see also United States v. Nixon, 418 U.S. 683, 698-99 (1974) (citing Bowman Dairy Co. v. United States, 341 U.S. 214 (1951) (Rule 17(c)’s “chief innovation was to expedite the trial by providing a time and place before trial for the inspection of subpoenaed materials.”). However, Rule 17(c) provides no specific direction as to the proper procedure by which a party obtains a pretrial subpoena duces tecum, and courts have interpreted the language of the Rule to “indicate[] that an application for a subpoena duces tecum returnable at trial is governed by the provisions of Rule 17(a) and 17(b) dealing with the issuance of trial subpoenas.” Reyes, 162 F.R.D. at 469; United States v. Nelson, No. CR 15-2023, *2.

B. Ex Parte Applications for Pretrial Production

Absent a clear directive in the text of Rule 17(c) as to the proper procedure for obtaining pretrial production pursuant to a subpoena duces tecum, courts have “split as to whether a party may make an ex parte application for a pretrial subpoena duces tecum.” United States v. Sellers, 275 F.R.D. 620, 624 (D. Nev. 2011). The Tenth Circuit has not yet ruled on the issue, and in the absence of binding authority to the contrary, this Court is persuaded that indigent defendant should be permitted to make an application for the pretrial production of documents ex parte. Compare United States v. Nelson, No. CR 15-2023, *3-4 (same); United States v. Hargrove, No. 11-cr-326, 2013 WL 3465791, *4 (D. Colo. July 9, 2013) (same); United States v. Vigil, No. CR 10-2310, 2013 WL 3270995, *17-18 (D.N.M. June 3, 2013) (same); Sellers, 275 F.R.D. at 625; United States v. Beckford, 964 F. Supp. 1010, 1030 (E.D. Va. 1997) (same); Reyes, 162 F.R.D. at 470-71 (same). The Court agrees that:

[t]here are strong policy reasons in favor of an ex parte procedure. If a source of evidence were to be identified before the issuance of a subpoena, the source or the integrity of the evidence might be imperiled. In addition, a party may have to detail its trial strategy or witness list in order to convince a court that the subpoena satisfied the Nixon standards of specificity, relevance, and admissibility. If a full adversary hearing were required to obtain a subpoena duces tecum, a party would be forced to reveal this information to the opposing side, a result which would occur even if a court declined to issue the subpoena. In this vein, the Court is mindful that it is often defendants who seek a subpoena duces tecum on an ex parte basis in order to avoid disclosing their trial strategy to the Government.

162 F.R.D. at 470.

Although the Court finds that an ex parte application for a subpoena duces tecum ordering pretrial production of evidence is permissible, “it does not follow that the defendant is entitled to strategic advantage or tactical surprise.” Sellers, 275 F.R.D. at 625. The plain language of Rule 17(c) authorizes the court to “direct the witness to produce the designated items in court before trial or before they are to be offered in evidence,” and once “the items arrive,” to “permit the parties and their attorneys to inspect all or part of them.” Fed. R. Crim. P. 17(c) (emphasis added). Accordingly, while the Court will permit Mr. Gomez-Guzman’s motion to remain ex parte and under seal, it will not direct that the production of the requested material be made directly to defense counsel. Rather, the requested evidence must be produced to the court. Sellers, 275 F.R.D. at 625, Vigil, 2013 WL 3270995, at *21.

C. Standard for Pretrial Production

“Rule 17(c) was not intended to provide an additional means of discovery.” Bowman Dairy, 341 U.S. at 220. Accordingly, a party seeking issuance of a subpoena duces tecum under Rule 17(c) must establish:

(1) that the documents are evidentiary and relevant; (2) that they are not otherwise procurable reasonably in advance of trial by exercise of due diligence; (3) that the party cannot properly prepare for trial without such production and inspection in advance of trial and that the failure to obtain such inspection may tend unreasonably to delay the trial; and (4) that the application is made in good faith and is not intended as a general “fishing expedition.”

United States v. Abdush-Shakur, 465 F.3d 458, 467 (10th Cir. 2006) (quoting Nixon, 418 U.S. at 699-700). In order to meet this burden, the moving party “must clear three hurdles: (1) relevancy; (2) admissibility; and (3) specificity.” United States v. Morris, 287 F.3d 985, 991 (10th Cir. 2002) (quoting Nixon, 418 U.S. at 700). It is insufficient that the requested evidence “may have some potential of relevance and evidentiary use.” Sellers, 275 F.R.D. at 624. “The specificity requirement also prevents a subpoena duces tecum issued pursuant to Rule 17(c) from being used as a ‘fishing expedition to see what may turn up.’” Id. (quoting Bowman Dairy, 341 U.S. at 221).

II. The Case Now Before the Court

As stated above, the Court finds that Mr. Gomez-Guzman, who is indigent, has properly made his Motion ex parte, and in order to protect the mental impressions and trial strategy of his defense counsel, Mr. Gomez-Guzman’s Motion will remain ex parte and sealed.

The Court finds that Mr. Gomez-Guzman has satisfied the Nixon test and established good cause for the subpoena as to the two specific categories of documents sought in the Motion.

Mr. Gomez-Guzman has further demonstrated that he is acting in good faith and not attempting to conduct a general fishing expedition, and that he needs the material sought to assist him in his defense against the government's allegations against him in this case. Accordingly, the Court will allow Mr. Gomez-Guzman to request production of the two categories of documents he seeks through a Rule 17(c) subpoena duces tecum.
